Killer Queen: A Painted Faces Novel L.H. Cosway

Willkommen, Bienvenue, Welcome... Come inside The Glamour Patch club to see the star of our show, Miss Vivica Blue. Do you want to read my diary you nosy little devils? Have a glass of champagne (you'll need it) and get comfortable because you're in for some crazy shenanigans brought to you straight from the horse's mouth. I can be whatever you want me to be: boy, girl, a little bit of both. If you have a problem with a man in a dress then best be off with you. If males in make-up give you the willies, then I'll say au revoir and don't let the door hit you on the way out. So, who are we left with? Ah, a fine collection of curious souls. I want to tell you a tale of love, because those are the most glorious kind. I want to tell you about real love, a love that transcends labels and gender stereotypes. The moment I first laid eyes on my Freda I knew that we were kindred. Well okay, I also knew I wanted to get into her pants, but that's beside the point. My world was a grey place. I was at my lowest ebb. Then she came along and patches of colour began to spring forth. One day the daffodils were yellow and before I knew it, colour was everywhere, lighting up my life. Love is not about how we appear on the outside, it's about the soul contained within. Our story was not a conventional one, but it was ours, and that's what made it shine. Killer Queen is a companion novel to L.H. Cosway's contemporary romance, Painted Faces. It contains scenes that take place before, during and after the original story. It can also be read as a standalone.
